

1st International Staff Week, Hof University, 7 - 11 November 2016

We are happy to announce our first International Staff Week, which will take place at Hof University, Germany, from 7th to 11th November 2016. The topic is "Student Employability". The staff week is open to academic and non-academic staff and includes workshops on best practice, measures to enhance student employability, dual study programmes and the role of alumni, as well as an opportunity to present your university at our annual study abroad fair.

We also offer an extra-curricular programme, including a full day excursion. And, of course, you will get the opportunity to meet colleagues from Hof University as well as from our other international partner universities.

Further details, a draft programme and an application form are available on our website: <http://www.hof-university.com/international/international-staff-week.html>.

The application deadline is 15th July 2016.

We consider this to be a great opportunity also for non-academic staff working in the field of internationalization to come to Germany, get to see Hof University, meet us here and many other international colleagues. For further questions, please contact Jörg Noldin (jnoldin@hof-university.de) or Nerissa Schwarz (nschwarz@hof-university.de).

We look forward to receiving applications from your university!
